

Ecological restoration of NS provincial parks system

Art Lynds

Provincial Parks and Protected Beaches Ecologist
N. S. Dept. of Natural Resources, Parks and Recreation Div.

The major objectives of Nova Scotia's Provincial Parks System is to preserve native biodiversity and to provide an natural outdoor recreational experience for the general public. Due to past land use practices, many of our Parks are severely degraded. In order to re-establish ecological integrity to some of our more significant Parks, a relatively new science -ecological restoration- is being implemented to facilitate this conversion. A very short overview of the ecological restoration project at Graves Island Provincial Park will be presented, followed by discussion of the proposed Arisaig project.

All are welcome.

Wednesday, October 22nd, 2014

11:15 -12:05

Physical Sciences Centre 2045